

GOV. R. L. BEECKMAN TO REVIEW SAULS

Mrs. Beekman Will Present Stand of Colors to Most Efficient Regiment.

NEWPORT SOCIETY ACTIVE

Many Functions Arranged for To-day—Dinner and Dance for Miss Vanderbilt.

Special Dispatch to The Sun.
Newport, R. I., Aug. 9.—Many of the summer residents are expected to be present at the Naval Training Station to-morrow morning for the weekly review and inspection of the naval force. The review will be tendered to Gov. R. Livingston Beekman, and Mrs. Beekman is to present a stand of colors to the regiment having the highest efficiency record for the past month. Gov. and Mrs. Beekman went to Thompson's Point, today, the governor speaking to the grangers assembled there.

Mrs. Lawrence L. Gillespie was a luncheon hostess at the Mount Pleasant house, Mrs. Charles A. Childs of New York, mother of Mrs. Fausch, and Mrs. Beekman, who is at the Mount Pleasant house, are expected to be present at the dinner to be given for the remainder of the summer.

There was a large attendance of the members of the summer colony this morning at the funeral service for Miss Alice Ketchum, who died at the Mount Pleasant house, today. The service was conducted by the Rev. Charles Lewis Slattery of Grace Church, New York. The body, accompanied by the family, was taken to New York, where the interment will take place in Woodlawn cemetery.

A heavy rainstorm this afternoon stopped all out of door social activities, but there was considerable entertaining this evening. Chief among the dinner parties was that given by Capt. and Mrs. Perry Belmont at Belmont in honor of their guests, Mrs. Marshall Field of New York.

Howard Spencer Graham and Mrs. Craig Biddle gave dinner to-night and Mrs. Oliver Perrin was a luncheon hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Bull gave an informal dancing party and tea at Dudley Place this afternoon.

Tomorrow afternoon there will be another entertainment at the Mount Pleasant house, when the Red Cross and at night the chief social affair will be the final parties in honor of the coming out of Miss Grace Vanderbilt, a dinner at Beaulieu and a dance at Beekwood.

Mrs. Walter R. Gherard is entertaining Mrs. Grafton Winthrop Minot of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Kuhn and family of Pittsburgh are making a short visit here.

Mr. Bolevaine has joined his father, C. Louis Bolevaine, from New York.

Mrs. Samuel J. Wagstaff is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Leroy French.

Miss Alice Preston was in charge of the entertainment given to-night for the soldiers at Fort Getty.

Mrs. William Laimbeer has returned to Westbury, L. I., after a visit here.

Mrs. M. Hutton and Mrs. Hutton did not open her home this summer.

Lewis R. Chandler of New York is making a short visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Dolan have returned from Philadelphia.

Prof. Henry Alfred Todd of Columbia University is expected to-morrow for a short stay and for a conference with Mr. and Mrs. McKim of New York, who is at Hill Top.

TO OBSERVE LAFAYETTE DAY.

Bretton Woods Colonists Arranging for Celebration Sept. 6.

Special Dispatch to The Sun.
Bretton Woods, N. H., Aug. 9.—The Bretton House is having its usual relief activity, with some informal entertaining among the cottage and hotel owners, and the guests of the resort. Lafayette Day celebration was such that elaborate plans are now being formulated by the colony for the proper observance of Lafayette Day on September 6 and Robert Hatcher of Washington will act as chairman of the committee on arrangements. Many persons are expected to be present.

DIED.
RAILEY—Clayton E. Living in Broadway at "THE FUNERAL CHURCH" in state at Westbury, N. Y., on August 9, 1918, at the age of 66 years.

BIRD—At Massachusetts General Hospital, August 9, Francis William Bird, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, died at the age of 10 years.

BURNHAM—Suddenly, at his home in Marlborough, N. J., on Wednesday, August 7, 1918, Frederick Gordon Burnham, in the eighty-eighth year of his age.

Funeral service at his home, Saturday, August 10, 11 A. M. Please omit flowers.

COWPERTHWAITE—On August 7, 1918, at Hopton, L. I., Frank H. Cowperthwaite, in his seventy-seventh year.

Funeral from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Walter L. Tyler, to St. Ignace church, Brooklyn, N. Y., at 10 A. M. Saturday, August 10. Burial in St. Ignace cemetery.

CRANE—At Marlborough, N. J., on Thursday, August 8, 1918, Clarence Crane of Washington, D. C., youngest son of the late Augustus and Mary E. Crane. Funeral private. Interment in Greenwood cemetery.

FIELD—Suddenly, August 8, 1918, at his residence, Field house, Peekskill-on-Hudson, Cortlandt de Peyer Field, beloved husband of Virginia Hamersley Field and son of the late Benjamin H. and M. Van Cortlandt Field.

Funeral service at Grace Church, Broadway and Tenth street, New York city, Monday, August 12, at 11:30 A. M. Interment Greenwood cemetery.

HEAT—At Orange, N. J., on August 7, 1918, Charles Edwin Heat, aged 60 years.

Funeral services from his late residence, 12 Linn Ridge Road, on Saturday, August 10, at 10 A. M. Interment at Westbury, N. Y., on August 11, at 10 A. M. August 11, at 10 A. M. August 11, at 10 A. M. August 11, at 10 A. M.

NEWELL—On August 8, 1918, John Oswald Newell, husband of Mabel A. Newell, in his thirty-third year.

Funeral service at his late home, 110 Gordonhurst avenue, Upper Montclair, N. J., Sunday, August 11, at 10 A. M. Interment at Framingham, Mass.

GOFFRE HAILS U. S. MEN AS BROTHERS

Details of Visit to American Sailors and Soldiers Club Received.

MAKES SHORT SPEECH

Presented With Statuette of "Sammy"—Pershing Also Gets One by Proxy.

Details more comprehensive than came over the cables describing the visit of Marshal Joffre, Ambassador of France, to the American Sailors and Soldiers Club, 11 Rue Royale, Paris, on the evening of July 27, have been received and indicate that the distinguished French soldier has not forgotten the welcome he received in America a year ago.

The occasion was to celebrate Independence Day, and was the first time in history such a celebration was held on European soil, except by American residents abroad.

"It was one great day," Dean Frederick W. Beekman, director of the club, told the French soldier, "and it is a day which will be remembered by the club and a similar one in Tours. A thousand men crowded themselves into the Galerie Brunner and another thousand into the Salle de la Paix, and the club windows or stood in the court."

Joffre gets wondrous cheer. "I wish that you could have one of the statues of the American soldier, given to Marshal Joffre, the American Ambassador and Gen. Pershing by the French Government. As to the club, I believe it is better than ever, although there have been a few changes in our personnel. The general morale over here is wonderful. In fact it is greatly improved over ten months ago and it is one million men who have done most of it."

Marshal Joffre received a tremendous cheer from the American soldiers, several of whom had seen him when he visited America. Addressing the men the hero of the Marne said:

"The occasion in which I find myself tonight reminds me of the mission which I was sent to America a year ago, when I went to appeal to the country of liberty."

"This appeal has been nobly responded to, the answer you all know. The American army arrives in vast numbers to fight by our side and we have already crushed the enemy has seen—that it is capable of."

"It defends as we do, progress, justice and independence. The American soldier is for us a worthy brother in arms. He is even more. The sense of sympathy, affection and esteem which unite him to us, make of him our brother in every conceivable respect."

"I am very proud of you Americans and I feel that I hear the call of duty everywhere in France," he began.

"My friends, I know almost every town, every village from which you come. I know the names of your fathers, your mothers, your sweethearts and sisters. I know the names of your fathers, your mothers, your sweethearts and sisters. I know the names of your fathers, your mothers, your sweethearts and sisters."

"Make your stay in this beautiful country as enjoyable as you can. I do not know of any nobler country nor one where you can find more sympathy and honor for me to speak here before the great Marshal Joffre, the representative of our great national holiday."

Emile Bourgeois, president of the French Club, presented the three statues. To Ambassador Sharpe he said:

"I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

"Then," continued M. Bourgeois, "I beg that you will accept it as a token of our respect."

NOTES OF THE SOCIAL WORLD

Miss Flora J. McAlpin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. McAlpin, will be married to Lieut. Charles Pierce Barton, Ordnance Department, U. S. A., at noon on August 17, at Dune Alpin, the country house of the bride's parents, East Hampton, L. I. A reception for a limited number of relatives and intimate friends will follow.

TOBACCO FUND PROFITS

Heroism of American Troops Thrills Audience in the Final Scenes.

"Mother's Liberty Bond"—At the Park Theatre.
Hubbard H. McAlpin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. McAlpin, will be married to Lieut. Charles Pierce Barton, Ordnance Department, U. S. A., at noon on August 17, at Dune Alpin, the country house of the bride's parents, East Hampton, L. I. A reception for a limited number of relatives and intimate friends will follow.

The weather was undoubtedly warm last night, but it was certainly no hotter than the scenes of the German spy in "Mother's Liberty Bond."

It seemed like old days returned, as though the true life of youth had suddenly been distributed, the villain was hissed and the hero was applauded and everything detrimental to the hero all most happened—and didn't—thus proving, beyond peradventure of a doubt, that many an honest heart beats beneath a sport shirt.

"Mother's Liberty Bond" (and let it be said right now before going into details of the plot and so forth that a percentage of the gross receipts go to the St. Louis Tobacco Fund) deals with the community life of a small New England town both before and during the war.

The plot (melodramas sometimes get along without one) concerns itself with the invention of one of the boys of the village, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model. Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

GERMAN SPY IS CORNERED IN PLAY

"Mother's Liberty Bond" Opens at Park, an Honest Melodrama.

TOBACCO FUND PROFITS

Heroism of American Troops Thrills Audience in the Final Scenes.

"Mother's Liberty Bond"—At the Park Theatre.
Hubbard H. McAlpin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. McAlpin, will be married to Lieut. Charles Pierce Barton, Ordnance Department, U. S. A., at noon on August 17, at Dune Alpin, the country house of the bride's parents, East Hampton, L. I. A reception for a limited number of relatives and intimate friends will follow.

The weather was undoubtedly warm last night, but it was certainly no hotter than the scenes of the German spy in "Mother's Liberty Bond."

It seemed like old days returned, as though the true life of youth had suddenly been distributed, the villain was hissed and the hero was applauded and everything detrimental to the hero all most happened—and didn't—thus proving, beyond peradventure of a doubt, that many an honest heart beats beneath a sport shirt.

"Mother's Liberty Bond" (and let it be said right now before going into details of the plot and so forth that a percentage of the gross receipts go to the St. Louis Tobacco Fund) deals with the community life of a small New England town both before and during the war.

The plot (melodramas sometimes get along without one) concerns itself with the invention of one of the boys of the village, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

Interwoven in this outline are mixtures of love affairs, in which the hero and heroine come together in the end, although their union seems doubtful at times in view of the nature of the hero's life, and the hero's life is a life of a hero.

There are other timely incidents worked in cleverly, such as the hero's escape from the village schoolmaster, who is a natural genius, and who is made a necessary improvement in airplanes, and the German spy, who is the village schoolmaster, steals the model.

Everything turns out satisfactorily, and the representative of the Imperial Majesty goes the proper route of all German spies—a short life but a gay one.

FRANCIS W. BIRD, EX-APPRAISER, DIES

Brilliant Young Attorney Passes Away in Hospital in Boston.

HE WAS 37 YEARS OLD

Graduate of Harvard and Former New York Chairman for Progressives.

Boston, Aug. 9.—Francis W. Bird of Walpole, son of Charles Sumner Bird and former owner and publisher of the Boston Evening Record, died in a hospital here today. He was 37 years old.

Francis W. Bird was an active figure in the politics of this city and State at an age when most men are groping their way in search of the first rung of the ladder of fame. By the time he was 25 he had been graduated from the Harvard Law School, and had been admitted to the bar, and soon thereafter was made Assistant United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York. Before he was 30 he was appointed Tax Collector of New York, and at 31 was New York county chairman of the Progressive party.

Graduate of Harvard.
Mr. Bird was born in East Walpole, Mass., July 4, 1881; was graduated at the Hill School in Pottsville, Pa., and Harvard, where he won his A. B. degree in 1902 and his LL. B. in 1905. In 1905 he was admitted to the bar, and was appointed Assistant United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, a position which he held for nearly three years.

He was then made a special assistant attorney and served under Henry L. Stimson, who afterward became Secretary of War under President Taft. Mr. Bird was one of Stimson's chief aids in the investigation of sugar and other frauds in the customs service. After a few months he was made a special assistant attorney and served under Henry L. Stimson, who afterward became Secretary of War under President Taft.

Mr. Bird was one of Stimson's chief aids in the investigation of sugar and other frauds in the customs service. After a few months he was made a special assistant attorney and served under Henry L. Stimson, who afterward became Secretary of War under President Taft.

Mr. Bird was one of Stimson's chief aids in the investigation of sugar and other frauds in the customs service. After a few months he was made a special assistant attorney and served under Henry L. Stimson, who afterward became Secretary of War under President Taft.

Mr. Bird was one of Stimson's chief aids in the investigation of sugar and other frauds in the customs service. After a few months he was made a special assistant attorney and served under Henry L. Stimson, who afterward became Secretary of War under President Taft.

Mr. Bird was one of Stimson's chief aids in the investigation of